February 27: James Jordan

James Jordan is President/Owner of Jordan Construction Company. He has over fifteen years of experience in the construction industry while currently managing a certified, minority-owned business specializing in commercial construction that entails private, public and government projects. Since arriving in Greenville, his ambition and drive to succeed in the industry are contagious - having been named "Top 40 Under 40" in 2014 by The Black Pages, Talented Tenth Top 10 Professionals in 2014, and most recently receiving the Greenville Chamber of Commerce Minority Business of the Year in 2014, and featured in the Upstate Business Journal for his outstanding entrepreneurship and diligence in business.

Entrepreneurial in spirit, Jordan is a charismatic leader who understands the heartbeat of business, the importance of developing working partnerships with clients like the Greenville Housing Authority and Greenville County Schools, but also giving back to his industry by facilitating educational workshops, promoting diversity in business, and sponsoring entrepreneurial initiatives for youth through The Jordan Foundation. James Jordan is no doubt propelling Jordan Construction Company towards regional and national expansion.

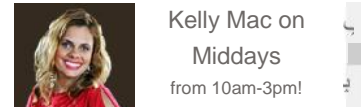

Mr. Jordan's affiliations include:

- American Society for Healthcare Engineering (ASHE)
- Society of American Military Engineers (SAME)
- Greenville Chamber of Commerce
- Minority Business Assistance Program
- Diversity Leadership Institute
- Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM)
- Better Business Bureau

He is educated in Leadership Development from Marquette University, Milwaukee, WI, with an Associate in Arts, Business Marketing from Waukesha County Technical College in Wisconsin.
